Stewardship Corner

In today's Gospel, Jesus had planned to slip away from the crowds for a few moments of peace and a little rest. When He saw people gathered, however, He put His needs aside to meet the needs of others. Sometimes, as good stewards, we are called to do the same.

A Weekly Tip on Caring for Our Common Home

Save water by taking shorter showers and not letting the water run continuously while brushing teeth or shaving. In this way we can help bring a future in which impoverished populations around the world will have affordable access to a clean source of this God-given necessity of life.

All Saints Foundation

The funds entrusted to All Saints through our All Saints Foundation are invested and professionally managed by the Catholic Foundation in the Archdiocese of Dubuque (CFAD). Once a year, we are able to take up to a 4% distribution of the interest and realized gains on the fund for the year. This year the All Saints Finance Council recommended that we reinvest all the profits from the Charles and Agnes Gradoville Scholarship Endowment, the John and Joan Bahning Scholarship Endowment and the Hess Endowed Fund for Adult Formation. The Finance Council recommended that we take the full 4% distribution of the All Saints Sustainability and Education Endowment. The grant received from this totaled $87,608.06. Of this distribution, $65,206.68 is for the church, $14,604.26 will go to All Saints School and $7,797.12 is for All Saints School to assist families in need of a scholarship to help pay tuition at All Saints School. This distribution split is calculated as per the by-laws of the All Saints Foundation.

Those who have gone before us, who share a foundation of faith and a love of All Saints Parish helped to start our endowment accounts. We benefit greatly from their generosity as will the generations who will come after us. Each of us has the ability to partner with the past and the next generation by giving a gift to the All Saint Foundation now or through a bequest in your will. God calls us to partner with those who have come before us and to offer the best of what we have for those who follow. As is evident from the amounts listed, your legacy, when partnered with the generosity of others, can have a lasting impact. Consider giving a gift or including All Saints Parish in your estate planning. If you have any questions or would like more information, please contact Tracy Huk at 319-363-6130 ext 111 or businessmgr@allsaintscr.com.

Green Prairie Garden — Christine Kirpes, Garden Coordinator

Our cool-season veggies continue. We have lots of Swiss Chard, Kohlrabi, Collards, Kale, and Radishes. The Onions are coming on! We're just starting to get ripe Cherry Tomatoes & our Summer Squash is flowering. Soon we'll be bringing in loads of tomatoes & squash for our hungry neighbors!

*Ways to Help Our Garden for FREE:

We use larger yogurt & cottage cheese containers, as well as 5 qt ice cream buckets for smaller amounts & smaller veggies (like cherry tomatoes). Think of us while eating ice cream & dairy products this summer and send us your clean containers in this size range. These smaller containers don't last as long so we need to keep replacing them. We can also sometimes use fence posts or other gardening supplies you no longer need. (Email us and we'll let you know if our garden can use them.) Thank You!

- yogurt & cottage cheese (16 oz, 32 oz, & up)
- 5 qt ice cream
- smaller buckets with handles

* New Volunteers Needed ****

Have fun with others while planting, weeding, watering, and doing general yard work. We can use your help even if you aren't a gardener. Bring a friend! Students are eligible to complete service hours at our garden!

Everyday Metanoia

In today's Gospel reading from Mark, the disciples return from their travels. As Jesus listened to their stories, he recognized that they needed to be "fed", through time with him to reflect upon their teaching and healing ministry efforts, through prayer and through physical rest. Pope Francis declared 2024 the Year of Prayer in preparation for the 2025 Jubilee Year 'Pilgrims of Hope'. Why the focus on prayer? Prayer is our way of communicating with God and more often than not, it is in this quiet time that God responds to us if we are attentive, open and listening.

The Catechism of the Catholic Church identifies the different forms that prayer can take: blessing and adoration; petition; intercession; thanksgiving and praise. While a lot of our prayer most likely focuses on petition and intercession, let's talk about the other three forms and see how they played a part in today's Gospel reading.

CCC 2626 states, "Blessing expresses the basic movement of Christian prayer; it is an encounter between God and [person]. In blessing, God's gift and the [person's] acceptance of it are united in dialogue with one another." Throughout their travels, the disciples were blessed with a share in Jesus' teaching and healing authority. They accepted this gift and through the sharing of it, enriched and changed the lives of many that they encountered. Do we think about this in our own life? Take 5-10 minutes and write down some of the blessings, the gifts, the charisms that are in your life. It's amazing how quickly our gratitude level increases and our level of entitlement decreases as the list of named blessings fills the paper or screen. I can only imagine that the disciples were probably still in a state of awed shock as they recounted the many blessings that occurred as they preached repentance, healed and drove out demons. Sharing these stories with others and giving the glory to God, the source of our blessing, brings light into a dark world. It also strengthened them (and us) to gratefully accept the next blessing.

CCC 2637 defines a prayer of thanksgiving as the prayer of the Church which, in celebrating the Eucharist, reveals and becomes more fully what she is. Indeed, in the work of salvation, Christ sets creation free from sin and death to consecrate it anew and make it return to the Father, for his glory." While the Eucharist has yet to be established by Jesus in a formal way in today's Gospel account, we know that Jesus breaks bread with the disciples often. As stories are shared around the table or fire, the joy of the disciples is offered in thanksgiving to God. Through the sharing in the authority of Jesus, the disciples set some people free from sin and death through the removal of demons and illness. When we recall the story of the institution of the Eucharist at each Mass, we, too, are offering thanksgiving to God for the salvific work of His Son through his death and resurrection.

CCC 2639 states that "praise is the form of prayer which recognizes most immediately that God is God. It lauds God for his own sake and gives him glory, quite beyond what he does, but simply because HE IS. Like the inspired writers of the New Testament, the first Christian communities read the Book of Psalms in a new way, singing in it the mystery of Christ...in the newness of the Spirit, they also composed hymns and canticles in the light of the un-heard of event that God accomplished in his Son; his Incarnation; his death which conquered death; his Resurrection; and Ascension to the right hand of the Father." (CCC 2641) We sing at every liturgy. Take the time to reflect on the responsorial psalm and the words of the songs. Most often we are acknowledging and thanking (praising) God just because HE IS and because He is a part of our life; staying with us and continuing to call and gather us back to the flock, even when we stray.

As part of our prayer this week, let's try to put ourselves in the scene with Jesus and the disciples. Recall a time when you accomplished something that was challenging. Can you name it and see the hand of God? Yes, God wants us to bring our troubles, our sorrows and our needs to Him, but that should be accompanied with a mix of blessing, thanksgiving and praise, too. We have been given much. Thank you God for being a part of our lives, for the many ways that you bless us and for offering us the food of your Word and the Eucharist - which strengthens and sustains us.

Come to Mass this weekend (and the next and the next!) Sing loud and strong! God is good!

Summertime Book Discussion

Join in reading and discussing Jesus' Alternative Plan: the Sermon on the Mount. We'll meet on Wednesdays at 6pm at church from July 10 thru August 28.

When Jesus talked about the Kingdom of God, he was talking about an utterly different way of relating to human society as we know it. He lays out a blueprint for this new life in his best-known teaching, the Sermon on the Mount. Rohr goes through the teachings of the sermon, explaining the historical and cultural context of each verse and offering guidance for what it means for Christians today. The result is a clear, yet challenging look at the alternative plan laid out by Jesus for all to see.

I Will Give You Rest

The apostles return from their first missionary outing, and report to Jesus all they had done and taught. Jesus is very clear about what they are to do next. He sends them away to rest and recuperate. They went off by themselves in a boat.

I like this reading. Jesus delivers an important message for all moms and dads, especially those of us who are overcommitted, overresponsible and overstressed. If we are to respond in love to the people around us rather than react out of impatience, frustration or just plain exhaustion, we need to get away once in a while. Parents need to be alone and rest, even from each other.

Married couples need to give each other the gift of time, time alone to squander with a good book, a long walk or a respite in the garden. Consider giving each other a yearly weekend off to go on retreat to regroup and reenergize. Finally, make sure you spend some time together without the youngsters.

Sometimes we get so wrapped up in being mom or dad or wage earner that we forget we are part of a couple. Parents need to treat their relationship like precious silver—forgotten, it will tarnish, but if you spend just a little time caring for it, you have a treasure that the whole family will benefit from.

Get away once in a while. Go out for coffee. Take a walk, or have a Taco Bell-catered dinner when the kids are in bed. If you want your marriage to work, you have to take the time to work on it. Time is precious. Like Jesus and the apostles, you know the crowds will eventually find you again.

Open the church's doors to evangelization, pope tells new archbishops

Pope Francis emphasized the importance of openness, unity and reliance on God's guidance during Mass with 33 new archbishops for the feast of Sts. Peter and Paul.

By Justin McLellan, CNS Rome
June 29, 2024

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- While Jesus entrusted St. Peter with the keys to the kingdom more than two millennia ago, and his modern-day successor conferred apostolic authority to newly appointed archbishops June 29, it is ultimately God who holds the power to open the church's doors and lead the Christian community forward in its mission of evangelization, Pope Francis said.

Reflecting on the Apostle Peter's liberation from prison after an angel opened his cell, the pope said God "is the one who sets us free and opens the way before us" in his homily during Mass for the feast of Sts. Peter and Paul June 29.

He noted that the Christians Peter sought out after his liberation did not believe he was knocking at their door, mistaking him for an angel.

"This point is significant: the doors of the prison were opened by the Lord's strength, but Peter then found it hard to enter the house of the Christian community," he said. "How many times have communities not learned this wisdom of the need to open the doors!"

Before 33 newly appointed archbishops gathered in St. Peter's Basilica to receive their palliums -- woolen bands worn by archbishops to symbolize their pastoral authority and unity with the pope -- Pope Francis underscored the model of St. Paul as one who "discovers the grace of weakness."

"When we are weak, he tells us, it is then that we are strong, because we no longer rely on ourselves, but on Christ," the pope said.

Yet he explained that relying on Christ "does not lead to a consoling, inward-looking religiosity like that found in a few movements in the church today," noting instead that St. Paul's encounter with God ignited within him "a burning zeal for evangelization."

Both Sts. Peter and Paul "witnessed firsthand the work of God, who opened the doors of their interior prisons but also the actual prisons into which they were thrown because of the Gospel," he said, as well as the "doors of evangelization, so they could have the joy of encountering their brothers and sisters in the fledgling communities and bring the hope of the Gospel to all."

After the entrance procession, deacons brought out the palliums from the tomb of St. Peter for Pope Francis to bless them. The palliums, made from the wool of lambs blessed by the pope on the feast of St. Agnes -- who is often depicted with a lamb to symbolize purity -- emphasize the role of the archbishop as a pastor who guides and protects his flock.

Mass -- Cardinal Giovanni Battista Re, dean of the College of Cardinals, was the main celebrant at the altar -- but stood during the sign of peace to greet Orthodox Metropolitan Emmanuel Adamakis of Chalcedon, who attended the Mass as part of a delegation from the Ecumenical Orthodox Patriarchate of Constantinople.

The pope invited the metropolitan to sit next to him when he distributed the palliums to the archbishops, who each shook his hand after greeting the pope.

Among the 33 archbishops were Archbishop Christopher J. Coyne of Hartford, Connecticut, and Archbishop Thomas R. Zinkula of Dubuque, Iowa. Both U.S. archbishops brought members of their families with them to Rome to witness them receive their palliums from the pope.

After the Mass, Archbishop Zinkula told Catholic News Service that receiving the pallium is a "huge symbol" of the archbishops' unity with the universal church and the pope, which he said is especially important in light of a growing sense of division in the United States at large and the U.S. church.

A member of the North American synod team, Archbishop Zinkula said that discussions on tensions arose in many synod listening sessions throughout the country, and that the responsibility for overcoming such feelings of division fall to the church's pastors.

"If we're going to be effective in evangelizing in our increasingly secular culture, we've got to be together as a church, and that bishop is at the heart of that," he said, stressing the need for people to seek refuge in the sacraments and particularly the Eucharist "to heal us and help us grow in our faith and love."

The archbishop said the church needs to address its own sense of division, but that it should also play a role in “helping to dissipate that larger tension in society.”

Archbishop Coyne also acknowledged increased societal division which “finds its way into the church,” but said that the chair of St. Peter remains as a “symbol of unity” for Catholics, “irregardless of who sits in it.”

As a result, the church’s pastors are called to be “unifiers,” the archbishop told CNS. “People are feeling isolated, that’s why we want to bring them to communion, people are feeling angry and feel they have meaningless lives, that’s why we want to have them know the full meaning of life, which is in Jesus Christ.”

“Everything we do as Christians, especially as Catholics, should never be anything that leads to division, anger,” but rather action that “brings us together as brothers and sisters,” he said.

An experience of unity-in-diversity while in Rome

By Archbishop Thomas R. Zinkula

This was my third opportunity as a bishop to interact with the Holy Father, and it was nice to have a front row seat at the Mass celebrating the Solemnity of Saints Peter and Paul at which he blessed and distributed the pallia to the new archbishops! Although he is getting on in years and now has limited mobility, Pope Francis was “on his game” and it was a joy to be with him once again.

Along with my reconnection with the pope and with Archbishop Coyne at the Mass, it was a pleasure to “run into” three acquaintances from the past. One of them was Archbishop Raphael p’Mony Wokorach from Uganda, who was a member of the group of new archbishops who received the pallium. Archbishop Wokorach is friends with a Davenport priest who grew up in Uganda, and the three of us had dinner together a couple of years ago while he was visiting his priest friend in Iowa.

Another person I got to know during my time in Davenport – Taryn Watkins, a consecrated virgin from the Diocese of Peoria – happened to be seated at the Mass next to my family members who were in attendance. She is in Rome working on a graduate degree in theology. A couple of years ago, Taryn came up with the idea of a Eucharistic procession beginning in the Diocese of Davenport, crossing the Mississippi River, and ending in the Diocese of Peoria, which was well-received.

The third person was Bishop Robert Pipta of the Byzantine Catholic Eparchy of Parma (Ohio), who was in town for an ecumenical conference. He was seated nearby during the Mass, and as I was returning to my seat after receiving the pallium he told me he would like to attend the Mass in the Archdiocese of Dubuque during which the nuncio will impose the pallium on me. Bishop Pipta’s expansive eparchy (diocese) has an outreach to Iowa, and while I was the bishop of Davenport I supported the Eastern rite priest who comes to Iowa every Sunday to celebrate the Divine Liturgy with a small group of Byzantine parishioners.

These three encounters reflected the unity-in-diversity of Christians that the Holy Father referenced in his homily and is symbolized in the pallium.

Editor’s Note – The August 12 issue of Together will feature details about an Archdiocesan Pallium Mass on Sunday, September 8, at St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish in Hiawatha. His Eminence Christophe Cardinal Pierre, Apostolic Nuncio to the United States, will give a presentation prior to the Mass, impose the pallium on Archbishop Zinkula, and deliver the homily. The Mass will be livestreamed for those unable to attend. Additional details will also be provided on archdiocesan social media accounts and at www.DBQArch.org later this summer.

Statement on the appointment of Bishop-elect Scott E. Bullock as the 10th Bishop of Rapid City, South Dakota

June 25, 2024

For the third time in recent years, the Holy Father Pope Francis has looked to the Archdiocese of Dubuque for a bishop to serve the Church.

We thank Father Scott Bullock for saying “yes” to being ordained and installed on September 23, 2024, as the tenth bishop of the Diocese of Rapid City.

These three appointments are a testament to the quality of the presbyterate in the Archdiocese of Dubuque. May Father Scott’s gracious “yes” inspire young men to consider God’s plan for their own lives, which may be to say “yes” to a call to the priesthood.

The Archdiocese of course will be sad to lose such a good and faithful servant of the Lord, who excelled in his priestly ministry here for 33 years. But we nonetheless are joyful that the Diocese of Rapid City will soon come to appreciate the gift God is giving them in their new bishop.

May our prayers for Bishop-elect Bullock assist him in the transition to his new ministry, which we pray will be meaningful and fruitful.

Most Rev. Thomas R. Zinkula
Archbishop of Dubuque

Bishop-elect Scott E. Bullock was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Daniel W. Kucera, O.S.B., on June 22, 1991. He has been Pastor at St. Edward Parish in Waterloo since 2014.

IMPACT REPORT

I encourage you to read this report in full, not only to learn about what we've been able to accomplish through ArchdioceseOne, but also to understand the scope of our remaining needs for these beneficiaries, and the work that will be required to solidify the foundations of the church in the Archdiocese of Dubuque for the generations of Catholics to come.

Archbishop of Dubuque

CATHEDRAL of ST RAPHAEL

Thanks to the generosity of donors to ArchdioceseOne, necessary repairs to the Cathedral of St. Raphael and its campus have been made to ensure the structural integrity of the buildings.

In Phase 1 of the project, which took place during the summer and fall of 2021, the old parking lot was removed and cisterns were installed underground to help redirect water away from the Cathedral church and rectory, helping to alleviate the issue of water pouring the basement of both buildings during heavy rains. Repairs were also made to the foundations of the church and the rectory during this phase. After work was completed underground, replacement of the parking lot and sidewalks commenced.

Phase 2 addressed repairs to the exterior of the campus buildings. Repairs were made to the bells and steeple on the Cathedral tower, replacing the sheet metal on the top portion of the tower. The new metal was then repainted to match the limestone on the lower portion. The Cathedral stained glass windows, particularly the ones in the Cathedral Center, were also repaired. Tuckpointing was completed to repair the exterior brick. This phase also saw the roof of the Cathedral being replaced on the Cathedral, Cathedral Center, and the rectory.

As the amount contributed to the appeal allows for the continuation of Phase 3, future work will include necessary indoor repairs, such as fixing damage to the plaster due to leaks in the roof, repainting, etc.

In the past year alone, Catholic Charities staff has tirelessly served 1,250 clients in the Immigration Legal Services program, a remarkable achievement made possible in part by the generous support provided by donors to the ArchdioceseOne special appeal.

Since the beginning of the appeal, the demand for the vital services Catholic Charities provides has continued to surge, witnessing a 75% growth since 2019 beyond the exponential growth that had already taken place before the appeal began.

Events such as civil unrest in countries like Cuba, Haiti, Nicaragua, Venezuela, along with the parolees from Afghanistan and the war in Ukraine have only compounded the demand for Immigration Legal Services in the Archdiocese of Dubuque. These events have further highlighted the need for this ministry in more communities across the archdiocese.

PRIEST RETIREMENT

Thanks to our archdiocesan community's support of priest retirement through donations to ArchdioceseOne, we are pleased to announce that over $2.4 million will be allocated to the Priest Pension Plan over the next five years, along with a substantial portion of the unrestricted funds donated to ArchdioceseOne.

However, since the launch of the appeal in 2019, there have been some significant additional strains placed on the Priest Pension Plan, including a noteworthy increase in the pension amount to match the salary increase for active priests as well as other economic factors. This means that we must remain committed to seeking additional funds to ensure pension benefits for all of our retired priests now and in the future.

EDUCATION
as of 12/31/2023

Between the kickoff of the ArchdioceseOne special appeal in the fall of 2019 and December 31, 2023, we've been blessed to have nine seminarians ordained as priests in the Archdiocese of Dubuque. Thanks in part to donations to the Seminarian Education Endowment during ArchdioceseOne, these new priests are not burdened with the tuition, or room and board expenses that come with studying at a seminary.

As we continue to pray for more men to consider the vocation of priesthood, and costs to educate our seminarians continue to rise, we need to continue building up our Seminarian Education Endowment to ensure that there are adequate funds to support our future seminarians.

NEXT STEPS

1 Continue collecting pledges and recurring gifts to the special appeal, as well as accepting new gifts for the beneficiaries.

3 Establish a plan to meet the remaining unmet needs of the beneficiaries.

2 Communicate the ongoing needs of the four beneficiaries and their ministries.

4 Report back to donors the impact they have made on the beneficiaries of the appeal and their goals.
